PHILOSOPHY OF LAUGHING.

are these muscles to draw the mouth down-only one to draw it down, which what we are to laugh at, as we was cry. Laughing promotes digestion, and the internal organs. Every organ in man's system requires exercise to maintain it, hence laughing will be found to restore the internal organs. Many people refuse to believe that which might be refuted by a hearty laugh. Laughing equalizes circulation and produces a general exaltation of the system. It is a powerful means of resistance to that which may be the cause of a hearty laugh after indulging in a hearty Some people laugh in their sleeves, and restrain the down-thrust of the shoulders and are inordinately to the system.

ator, the twist of the mouth, &c., &c., all are as spacious and inquisitive. "The true and the true inquisitive" is the theme and many other complaints prevalent at those who are exiles in the gorgeous
